CHC Men's Club Will Dine Free, Elect Officers

Officers will be elected and a hot-weather dinner served free of charge at the June dinner-meeting of the Central Hebrew congregation Men's club in the vestry of the synagogue on Tuesday, June 21.

Dinner will start at 7 p. m. For reservations, call Vic Vigodner, CH-7329. Men guests are welcome.

Council Women Reduce Request

When a group of women asks for less money, it's news. But that is what the Indianapolis section of the National Council of Jewish Women has done.

They told the Jewish Welfare Federation's last board meeting that they will be able to get along with an appropriation of $2,100 for the 1954-55 fiscal year. The Council Women's previous request was for $3,300.

Federation is now about 1/2 of the way through its campaign to raise $435,000 for local, national and overseas causes.

NEW DIRECTOR OF IJCRC TO MEET BOARD MONDAY

The Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations council board of directors will meet the new executive director, Albert D. Chernin, and his wife, Rheta, at its final meeting of the 1954-1955 season at 8 p. m. Monday, June 13. The meeting will be held at the Merchants Bank branch at 21 W. 38th st.

Before taking over the IJCRC position on June 1, Chernin was a social group work supervisor in New York and Newark. He completed the residence requirements for his Ph. D. degree at Columbia university, where he studied under Professor Robert MacIver, an authority on community relations.

A native Hoosier, Chernin was a correspondent for the STAR and TIMES here while going to

AN OPEN LETTER To The Indianapolis Jewish Community

Our United Jewish Welfare Federation Campaign is in its last lap!

The results so far have been excellent. Card for card, we are running substantially ahead of last year.

The generosity and enthusiasm of workers and givers are thrillingly demonstrating that Indianapolis wants to do its full share to support vital services here in our own city, nationally, in Israel, and throughout the world.

As of now, more than $280,000 have been given by 1,400 contributors.

Despite this fine achievement, there's danger ahead!

Almost 500 additional contributors have not yet been heard from. Either our campaign workers have thus far been unable to contact them, or their cards have not been turned in to the office by the workers.

That is why we are writing this open letter. Our 1955 drive is on the verge of success; but it can be a dismal failure if we fall down on this last, final effort. We must not let success slip through our fingers.

We ask you:

If you are a campaign worker—please complete contacting the persons whose cards have been assigned to you and turn in the pledge cards to the Federation office within the next few days!

If you are a campaign giver who has not yet pledged—please make your pledge now; and make it as generous as possible. Don't force your worker to return for your pledge. If you have not yet been contacted, please call the Federation office (MElrose 4-4311, Extension 56) now with your pledge.

Your friends and neighbors are this year giving more to our United Campaign. We will reach our campaign goal if the pledges still out are turned in quickly and if contributors continue to give more!

REGENSTREIF CHOSEN BETH-EL'S PRESIDENT

Nathan Regenstreif was elected president of Congregation Beth-El Zedeck for the 1955-56 term, succeeding Manuel I. Leve, at the congregation's annual meeting last Monday night.

In the same balloting, Mrs. Arthur Schwartz became the first woman to be named an officer of the congregation. She was elected to the post of secretary.

Other members of the incoming administration are Samuel Weinberger, vice-president; Louis Barnett, treasurer, and Harry Freeman, executive secretary.

Following a newly approved resolution, 11 members were elected to the board of directors for the three-year term, 1955-58. They are Joseph Calender, Milton J. Fineberg, Leon Frisch, Paul Goldstein, Robert Hollander, Alex Katz, Manuel I. Leve, A. M. Max, Sam Weinberger, William Weinstein and Sam Ziffrin.

Ongoing president Manuel I. Leve indicated that the congregation may have the services of an assistant rabbi in the near future. He reported that a personnel subcommittee of the board of directors, whose recommendation for the assistant was approved by the board, expects to employ a young seminary graduate.

Leve also reported that the congregation now has 618 members, as compared with 584 last year and 569 as of July 1, 1953. Beth-El, he said, is the largest Jewish congregation in the state of Indiana.

$86,000 Received By Center Fund

The building fund drive for the new Jewish Community Center at 69th st. and Hoover rd. has already paid $86,000 of the $312,000 in three-year pledges secured.

Sam Kroot, chairman of the joint building committee, has announced that the architect is completing detailed plans so that bids on construction may be accepted later in the summer.

The new Center site is being improved for use by Kirshbaum's day camp during the coming months.

Several Good Openings

We would like to add several people to our Circulation sales staff. The earnings are good — a minimum of $75 a week, with the possibility of substantial additional salary.

We may also be able to use one or two people part time. Call

Scooting Around

With SANDY FRAZIN

HI! HOW YA BE! If you're worn to the bone from signing annuals, you'll have plenty of time to recuperate. Now that the grand time has come for loafing, maybe we could go back to school as there's so much time to do homework. Hey now! Hold everything! that's all. Off with the head. Now, let's get back to this delightful way of life since the head is taken care of.

IF YOU'VE GOTTEN THRU that jumble of words, you're doing well, so on with the doings. There isn't too much as everyone's very intent on studying the fascinating subject called "being lazy." It's very popular, and is the assignment for the summer. Looks as if everyone is working real hard for an "A" in it.

COUNCILLETES had their installation meeting at the Danns' May 31. There was a terrific turnout, with the mothers of those being installed and the advisors attending. A dinner was part of the agenda. Sincere congratulations to Fran Calderon, the new prez, and the other new officers. They are Rhea Leffel, first veep; Helen Frankovitz, second veep; Carolyn Herman, corresponding secretary; Renee Fox, recording secretary, and Rachel Max, treasurer. The various committee heads and board members are Sunny Calderon, Sydney Brodey, Doris Muschel, Esther Adelman, Judy Miller and yours truly.

AT THE SHORTRIDGE Quill and Scroll meeting, Paul Mode was elected president; Judy Paller, secretary, and Buffy Cohen, treasurer. Congratulations.

QUITE A FEW KIDS really raked in the scholarships and awards this year. From Indiana, Ralph Levitt, Elaine Brodey, Jim Klineman, Sarah Zimmerman and Bob Koor received scholarships. Carole Leve, who is graduating from Tudor Hall this month, received the Alice M. Breiant book award for proficiency in senior English. Best of luck at college next year.

Methodist Kosher Dinner

Congregants of Jefferson Methodist church, San Antonio, recently held a kosher building fund "loyalty dinner" in the auditorium of Agudas Achim synagogue. Agudas Achim, near the church, refused rent for the 650-person affair. Only four Jews, all invited guests, were present.

BIN visited Chicago not too long ago. Ooops! Mustn't forget Buttons. In case you haven't become acquainted with him, you should. He's a darling French poodle. I think he's a she. Anyway, Buttons is a light brown, cuddly poodle.

If It's a Conversation Piece, Call WA Inut 3-3561

UP AT 5829 NORTH NEW JERSEY lives a lady who has endeared herself to young and old alike by her ready laugh, her bright good nature, and by just being the very uncomplicated, easy-to-be-with person Anne Berman is. From her earliest recollections of life in Lithuania in the little town of Kershon where, during World War I, Anne and her family lived in trenches for seven weeks before being deported to Russia, on through the years when her husband went to China, her father and another brother went to Africa, and she was left behind to wait and hope that somewhere a new life could be lived for the Zoll family, Anne always found something to laugh about.

AS YOU GET to know this mother of Ceil Rossen, Dora Shorr and Gert Peril you realize it is this very philosophy of "laugh at it and you can lick it," that has kept her young in spite of the years. Anne has two brothers: Aaron Zoll, who settled in Terre Haute and has raised a fine family of sons and one daughter, Mrs. Jack London; and another brother, Jake Zoll, who after being arrested by the Communists as a spy, was finally released from prison and found his way to Africa with his mother and sister.

SO THE 40-YEAR separation started with Aaron Zoll and the Berman family in China, and Jake, his mother and sister in Africa; and for many years they have hoped and dreamed of a reunion. Two months ago their aged mother died, and perhaps her death and the feeling of transitoriness it brought them was the impetus making the desire more urgent, more acute. And now this lifelong dream is about to be realized. Aaron Zoll, his wife and Anne Berman left for New York and Idlewild airport to meet brother Jake. After 40 years, the family was finally reunited in Terre Haute last Sunday where the Zolls were hosts to a huge group of mishpocheh at a turkey dinner given in honor of their uncle and cousin. Next Sunday, the Morris Rossems of Anderson and their six daughters will entertain the same group.

A LOVELY candlelight installation, presided over by Jean Teixler, was the highlight of the Council closing dinner meeting at the home of Mrs.

PAST PRESIDENT Linda Zaft handed her white gavel over to new president Fran Calderon, and mamas beamed happily as Rhea Leffel, Helen Frankwitz, Renee Fox, Caroline Herman and Rachel Max were installed as the new leaders of Councilettes. Mary Fink, their coordinator, has wonderful plans for them for the coming year, which we all hope will help to bring these youngsters even closer to their parent group.

SEEN AT THE Civic Theatre Sunday Night . . . Helen Goldstein, wife of William, standing at the long line for the increasingly popular water fountain. . . Jake and Sarah Solotkin kibitzing about the new kind of fan he's going to invent, one that blows up from under the seat. . . Pretty silver-haired Annette Glick discovering the joys of the breezy alleyway during intermission. . . Louis and Rose Stillerman chuckling at the antics of some of the actresses. . . White-jacketed Morris Peril offering his black-frocked frau a sip of his coke. . . The play? Rather slow-moving but received in the manner in which it was given by a group of interested adult amateurs who managed to please their warm-in-more-ways-than-one audience with their interpretation of "Stage Door."

SID TUCHMAN is back from his honeymoon and vigorously waging a one-man campaign to marry off all his bachelor friends. "Why didn't you tell me how very special married life is," asks Sid indignantly, "look at all the years I've been wasting!"

CONGRATULATIONS to Jack Kammins and his justly proud Jennie. Jack is the new president of the Tenth Street temple. And the very best to carrot-topped Nate Regentreif and his dark-haired Irene. Nate picks up where Manuel Leve left off at Beth-El.

THE FOUL WEATHER dampened the spirits of Council education committee not one whit at their Broadmoor luncheon last rainy Monday where, under the chairmanship of Jennie Kammins, they planned and plotted for next season.

THIS WEEK sees the graduation of many of the youngsters of our Jewish community. It is gratifying to see what a large percentage are honor students, and that almost all of them are in the upper quarter of their respective graduating classes. To the parents, the best wishes of all of us; to the graduates, who are almost all going off to college, we'll miss you sorely and will look forward to frequent visits in the next four years. Have fun!

DRILL HITS POCKET OF GAS

ISRAEL'S HOPES FOR OIL GET BOOST

TEL AVIV (JP)—A 220-foot-high spurt of gas and flames has sent Israel's hopes of finding oil considerably higher this week.

The flash of yellow and red flames, which burned for more than an hour, at the Gan Yavne drill site of the Israel American Oil Corporation drill site near Gedera, was taken by experts to indicate the strong possibility of oil at the site.

A definite answer to the question should be forthcoming in two or three weeks, according to Jack Brin, vice-president of the corporation. Brin said that the rig, which had reached about 1,000 feet when the spurt took place, had been damaged and would have to be replaced with a new rig capable of reaching 2,000 feet.

HE INDICATED that an answer to the question of whether oil is present, an answer which holds many implications for Israel's economic future, should be obtainable after the drill has probed 330 to 440 feet deeper than its present 1,000 feet.

He told THE JERUSALEM POST that the bore hole, which was blocked as a result of the eruption, must be cleaned out. Then an electric log is to be run.

Brin noted that in nearby Arab countries, oil-bearing sand had been found under similar circumstances. He said that Lewis Franklin, president of the company, was on the site directing operations.

According to a ministry of development spokesman, the concession is held by Messrs. Nadel and Gosman, of Tulsa, together with the Palestine Economic Corporation. The Israel American Oil Corporation, which is doing the actual drilling, holds an interest in the concession.

THE SPOKESMAN, recounting the steps leading up to the drilling, said that seismic work taken within the concession area has pointed to the possibility of subterranean formations which might contain gas or oil.

The company decided to check the possibilities by a series of deep core drillings. When the drilling reached a little over 1,000 feet last week indications of oil and gas-bearing material were found, a not unprecedented occurrence in other sites nearby.

However, when on June 1 the drilling reached a gypsum stratum, a high-pressure explosion took place, something which has not occurred in Israel before.

WORKERS suddenly noticed the drill was being pushed up with a tremendous pressure. A jet of water, mixed with chemical elements, was thrown up over an area with a radius of more than 175 yards. Mud was spattered over the drill site.

Within minutes the gas caught fire. A burst of flame made its appearance and burned over an hour until part of the hole caved in and stopped the flow of gas. This is quite an unusual development during an unexpected burst of oil or gas, the spokesman said.

BROOKLYN CENTER INSTALLS PARTITION BETWEEN SEXES

By JEROME L. MILLER
Jewish Post Correspondent

BROOKLYN (JP)—After 20 years of congregational worship, the members of this city's Jewish Center of Hyde Park voted to install "mechitzah"—a partition separating the sexes in an Orthodox synagogue, which was officially dedicated this week.

The Center's spiritual leader, Rabbi Joseph Frankel, told THE POST that both the men's organization and the women's auxiliary voted unanimously to construct the partition.

He discounted the report that P-TA members attacked the plan as "regression and not progression."

The actual construction commenced two weeks prior to Passover and was completed for that holiday.

"We have not lost a member or worshipper since the change," Rabbi Frankel said. "In fact, we have gained new congregants at services since the installation of 'mechitzah.'"

The POST was informed that congregations in Pennsylvania and New Jersey have set up "mechitzah" in their respective synagogues and plan dedication ceremonies within the month.

UJA Has Raised $31 Million Cash

WASHINGTON (JP) — The United Jewish Appeal has raised $31,296,000 in cash in the first five months of this year's fund-raising campaign.

The total to date was revealed at the UJA national cash mobilization conference held here over the week end.

Searcher for Oil Finds Self Wife

TEL AVIV (JP)—A drilling team of the American Pontiac company, which reached 9,401 feet before abandoning a dry hole near Zichron Yaakov, has discovered its search was not entirely in vain.

While his company took its $100,000 loss gamely and went on to start a new exploration six miles away, Jim Ogelbee, the second engineer of the outfit, said he had discovered something: A bride. The 29-year-old Texan fell in love with a 22-year-old girl from Ramat Gan and will marry her in a few weeks.

Ogelbee, a non-Jew, has been circumcised and is converting to Judaism in order to conform with Israel's laws, which do not provide for mixed marriages.

BETTER U. S., ISRAEL RELATION PREDICTED BY U.N. OBSERVERS

By LILI ELLER
Jewish Post Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (JP)—A better era in Israel-American relations is foreseen here by informed sources which revealed that Ambassador Abba Eban took with him to Jerusalem for discussion with Premier Moshe Sharett plans for a mutual security pact given to him by the State Department.

Other recent developments may also be taken to indicate increased harmony between the United States and Israel.

A letter Tuesday by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. delegate to the United Nations, who is this month's security council president, is considered significant because it was sent on his own initiative without consultation.

LODGE

THE LETTER, addressed to Security Council members, stated that if the council's Mar. 30 resolution regarding the Gaza area was not implemented soon, the body may be called into session to cope with the present explosive situation.

The Mar. 30 resolution contains four provisions—U.N. Truce Chief E. L. M. Burns' recommendations for easing the border tensions which have been plaguing the area with increased frequency. His proposals include erecting barbed wire entanglements along the Gaza demarcation line, the formation of joint Israel, Egyptian and U. N.

patrols, stationing of regular troops only by both sides behind the truce lines, and conclusion of agreements between the local area commanders.

Lodge's action is unprecedented. In the past, grievances or their political allies presented complaints to the council, never the council president.

MEANWHILE, General Burns' new suggestions for high-level talk on the Gaza problem have been accepted by Israel, but flatly rejected by Egyptian Premier Nasser. Burns was told by Nasser at their meeting in Cairo last week that he believes talks can continue on the Mixed Armistice Commission level. Commission members are not high-ranking diplomats and have little power of decision.

The POST learned that Burns' words to Nasser, which resulted in the latter's threats against Israel, were incorrectly emphasized in the newspapers here this week. Burns had told the Egyptian Premier he did not know how long the border people could be kept in check, and that the Israelis might decide to clear up the Gaza situation. Thereupon Nasser threatened Egyptian armed intervention.

1,000 Delegates To Attend ZOA's 58th Convention

WASHINGTON (JP) — More than 1,000 delegates will gather here next week at the 58th annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America to survey the entire international scene affecting the economic stability and territorial security of Israel, as well as to discuss the future tasks confronting the Zionist movement.

SILVER

Main speakers at the four-day sessions which open June 16 will be Dr. Abba Hillel Silver; Mortimer May, ZOA president; Joseph Serlin, Israeli minister of health and General Zionist leader; Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban; Dr. Emmanuel Neumann, chairman of the ZOA national executive, and Edward E. Gelber, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada.

Plenary sessions will be given over to discussions of issues confronting the forthcoming 24th World Zionist Congress, U.S. Policy toward Israel and the Middle East, the relationship between Israel and the Diaspora, and the role of Zionism as a "fructifying force in Jewish life."

Sculptor Mitchell Fields puts finishing touches on a bust of Albert Einstein. The likeness of the great Jewish scientist was to have been unveiled at a memorial tribute to Einstein which was called off recently (JP, June 3, '55).

FINALY CASE FINISHED

Drop Charges Against Priests On Abduction of Jewish Boys

BAYONNE, France (JP)—All charges, and a court case, against a group of priests and laymen accused of smuggling two Jewish boys across the Spanish border two years ago in order to keep them Roman Catholics have been dropped.

The boys, Gerald and Robert Finaly, now living with an aunt and uncle in Israel, were the sons of Jewish refugees from the Nazis who were sent to a concentration camp after France's surrender. They were given to a French family and were baptized and brought up as Catholics.

After the war, their relatives in Israel claimed them, but their French guardians would not give them up. Court orders, arrests, and newspaper polemics followed, and stirred up a religious-political storm.

Smuggled to Spain through a chain of convents, the Finaly boys were finally returned to France after an agreement between Jewish and Catholic leaders. Their uncle, Moshe Rosner, promised that they would have "freedom of religious choice."

CAUSE INCREASED DELINQUENCY

Too Many Substitutes For Parents, Says Rabbi

NEW YORK (JP) — The substitution of "baby-sitters, teachers, and counselors" for parents was blamed by Rabbi William F. Rosenblum of Temple Israel recently for the increase in juvenile delinquency.

Rabbi Rosenblum said that because of the "philosophy of getting away from it all" and growing "hunger to make everything easy," "parents seem to exert as little authority as possible, and children are respecting authority as little as possible." The "substitution of pleasure for duty is an ever-increasing danger that must be checked," he added.

Taking issue with the advocates of public school religious education, the rabbi said: "It is an easy thing to insist that the public schools give over part of their time to religion, but experience has shown that the countries that become atheistic are the very ones where the schools and the state made religion their business. When dictators took over the state, they took over the schools and put religion out of the way by mere decree."

One of Seven Germans Wants New Hitler

MUNICH, Germany (JP)—A poll of German voters recently showed 14 per cent of them ready to vote for a man like Hitler.

The poll, conducted by the German public opinion institute EMNID, asked: "If there was a man like Hitler today, would you or would you not give him your vote?"

Of the would-be pro-Hitler voters, 62 per cent are adherents of one of the four parties represented by Dr. Adenauer's coalition government. In the Social Democrat opposition party, 15 per cent of the voters were Hitler admirers.

Archbishop Blames Israel Again

LONDON—The Archbishop of York, who charged the Jewish vote in New York a year and a half ago with influencing the handling of the Israel-Arab issue, had published a bitter diocesan letter upholding the Arab case. The Archbishop, who returned recently from a trip to Jerusalem said the Arabs, "had been expelled by force from their homes or have fled from them at the fear of massacre."

"No doubt," he continued in the same vein, "there are isolated raids by individual Arabs, but the retaliation is terrible. A village may be bombed or wiped out by the military forces of Israel. Almost everywhere the general impression is that the Jews are anxious to provoke some incident which would give a pretext for retaliation on a large scale."

He Overcame Deafness In School and Sports

CHELSEA, Mass. (JP) — Among the 274 seniors at Chelsea high school who Wednesday night received their diplomas there was one who did not hear his name called — but he did walk briskly forward because he earned his diploma many times over.

Sheldon Freedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Freedman, has been a victim of deafness almost since birth. When he was 2 years old he was given lessons in first words and lip reading. At the age of 3½ he entered the Horace Mann School in Roxbury, the youngest ever to attend, and began his formal education despite his handicap.

Only recently, Sheldon learned that he has won another victory over his handicap. He has been admitted to Gallaudet college at Kendall Green in Washington, a government-sponsored college founded during President Lincoln's administration catering to deserving handicapped students.

BECAUSE Massachusetts does not provide secondary education for the deaf, Sheldon entered Chelsea high school upon graduation of the Horace Mann school. In his first two weeks at the high school he became discouraged; he quit three times.

Only the patience of his parents and some intelligent and kindly handling of teachers finally convinced him to remain. Sheldon found himself in athletics. He went out for the basketball team and made it. Coach Bernard Berenson, active in Jewish camping circles, convinced the boy to go out for the track team. In the first meet in which he ever competed, Sheldon broke the record for the running broad jump in his class.

FREEDMAN is a major reason for Chelsea high school's undefeated record of 17 meets. He gets his start either from someone on the sidelines, or by "feeling the vibration" of his opponents as they start. This naturally loses him a fraction of a second which he usually makes up with his tremendous speed.

During his younger years, Sheldon's parents saw to it that his Jewish education was not neglected. He attended a special class at Temple Israel, Boston, for handicapped children.

Sheldon is never sensitive about his handicap. Only recently one of the teachers at Chelsea high school was reprimanding the class for doing too much talking. In ending his remarks, the teacher pointed a finger at Sheldon, who is progressing rapidly in learning to speak, and shouted: "That goes for you, too."

Sheldon burst out laughing. He's got a right to laugh at his handicap. It just can't stop him.

REPORT ON KABUL

Remote Afghanistan's Jews Jailed for Moslem's Spree

By LILLIE ELLER
Jewish Post Correspondent

A Moslem officer's fondness for fire water was the cause of the jailing of the entire Jewish population of Kabul (Afghanistan) for two months not too long ago.

When the officer reeled out of a Kabul movie house obviously drunk, he was arrested by the police. (Moslem law prohibits the drinking of intoxicating beverages.) He told the cops he had received the liquor from Jews. The Afghan prime minister ordered every Jewish home in the city to be searched for liquor, those families possessing any to be jailed. And so it happened that the entire Jewish population of Kabul spent two months in the clink for keeping sacramental wine in their homes.

This incident, strange to our Western ears, is not too unusual a one in the lives of Afghanistan's Jews, who have lived in that backward theocracy for many centuries. Today only some 1,000 Jewish persons remain in Afghanistan's three major cities; the rest, some 9,000, having emigrated to Israel.

ONE OF THE few Afghani Jews in the United States is Mayer Abraham, a short, pleasant man who imports precious rubies and sapphires from India. Abraham readily explains the migration of Afghanistan's Jewry to Israel. (The mass immigration took place in 1932, in pre-Israel days.)

"We Afghan Jews have always prayed about Yerushalayim," he says. "We never said 'Tchayim' without adding, 'Tshana habaa b'Yerushalayim.' I guess we meant it."

Abraham himself does not expect to go to Israel in the near future, although numerous members of his family have moved there.

"The only thing I can do well is to conduct business," he explains seriously. "There is no need for business people in Israel today."

Most Afghani Jews were fur traders (the best so-called Persian lamb comes from Afghanistan) until the government, fearful of the monopoly the Jews were creating, issued a decree forbidding Jewish participation in the fur trade. The Jews, who, even in Afghanistan have been traditionally business people, then turned to textiles.

"THERE HAS not been a single case of intermarriage among us," Abraham proudly told THE POST. "Afghani Jews marry only among themselves. We are all Orthodox. There is a minimum of social intercourse with the Afghans. And now, especially, since the establishment of the Jewish state, and the consequent Arab-Israeli hostility, not much friendship is shown to the Jews by the Afghans, most of whom are Moslems."

NEW YORK

As for schooling among the Jews of Afghanistan, who, in appearance, strongly resemble the native population, it is the father of the family who assumes the role of teacher. He tutors his sons to the best of his ability in the Torah and Jewish customs.

The standard of living among Jews, as well as among Moslems, in Afghanistan is low. Outdoor wells serve as the sole water supply and the sewage system is primitive. Consumer goods are poor in quality and lack variety.

AMONG THE most guarded possessions of the Afghani Jews are their women, according to Abraham. Like their Moslem counterparts they are veiled when in the streets, and sometimes even in their homes when a Moslem visitor is present. Both Moslem and Jewish homes are surrounded by high walls so that no stranger should set eyes upon the women of the household.

Afghanistan may also have its lost tribe of Israel. Abraham says that in the northern part of the country there is a tribe, called the Pushtus, which resembles the Jews in many of its customs. The Pushtus wear earlocks and claim kinship with the Jewish people.

Abraham, who says there are only four other of his countrymen in the U.S., doesn't feel there is too much of a future for Judaism in Afghanistan. The once-thriving (relatively) community is apparently on its way out.

Nazism Dead, Says German Envoy To U. S.

WASHINGTON (WNS)—Nazis and neo-Nazism are "dead as a door nail" and there is no chance of their resurgence in West Germany, it was declared here this week by German Ambassador Heinz Krekeler.

Addressing a luncheon at the National Press Club, the ambassador said that anti-semitism was of no importance in the economic and political life of West Germany today. As evidence of Germany's present attitude toward the Jews he pointed to the Bonn-Israel reparations pact.

JEW IN VILNO

TEL AVIV (ZINS) — Twenty thousand Jews still reside in Vilno, Soviet Lithuania, according to Joseph Ram of Vilno, upon his arrival in Israel.

Burmese Premier Willing to Mediate Near East Peace

TEL AVIV (JP) — Burmese Premier U Nu this week told a news conference he is willing to mediate between Israel and the Arab States if requested by both sides.

The premier, who was on a nine-day visit to Israel, told the newsmen: "I am friendly with both your country and the Arab States. I am for peace. If both sides want me to do something for peace, I am prepared—but not unless I am asked by both sides; and I have not yet been asked by either side."

U Nu and Premier Moshe Sharett of Israel issued a joint statement reaffirming "the friendly relations so happily existing between the two countries."

U Nu's Visit To Israel Held Good Sign By Eban

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (JP)—The beginnings of amicable relations between Israel and neighboring Asiatic nations may be the result of Burma Premier U Nu's visit to Israel, according to Ambassador Abba Eban.

Speaking here June 2 at a testimonial dinner to A. D. Hirsch, chairman of the Israel Bond drive in Jersey City for the last four years, Eban declared:

"A chink in the wall of hostility built around us by Asian nations has already been developed. We hope this official visit of the premier of Burma to Israel is the first sign in a trend which will break down hostility carried over from the war with the Arabs."

The ambassador was welcomed and given the key to the city by Mayor Bernard J. Berry.

EGYPTIAN DELEGATE TALKS TO ANTI-SEMITIC HATE GROUP

By CHARLES ROTH
New York Bureau Chief

NEW YORK (JP)—Open co-operation between an Egyptian diplomat and an anti-semitic hate group was displayed at a meeting of the American Nationalist Coalition, front group for James H. Madole's National Renaissance Party, recently.

Abdul M. Hassan of the Egyptian delegation to the United Nations addressed a group of 30 people and expressed surprise that "those who suffered under Hitler would inflict the same treatment on the Arabs in the Middle East."

Madole introduced Hassan and followed him. He lashed out at the Jews with venom claiming that they murdered a million Arabs in Palestine. He also said that "six million Jews couldn't have been killed by Hitler because they can all be seen milling around the garment district any afternoon between 12 and 1 o'clock."

IN A BLAST at the Supreme Court, Madole maintained that the only people who want Negro, Puerto Rican, and white children to sit together have "noses so long you could hang wash out on them," and they all come from the Warsaw ghetto.

A table at the rear of the room, attended by a uniformed American Nationalist Coalition Youth member, contained literature such as "Egypt's Agrarian Policy Under the New Regime" by Dr. Abd-El-Razzak Sidky and "The Story of Zionist Espionage in Egypt." Madole said that a slew of the pamphlets there were provided by the Egyptian embassy and proved his charges.

One of the booklets on the table was, on the other hand, the March issue of the National Renaissance Bulletin. In it, Madole offered "Zionist Espionage in Egypt" to those who would send him a dollar or more.

THE BOOKLET offered bears no identification as to author or publisher and is distributed by the Egyptian embassy. One passage on page 57 says: "The Jews, badly treated by Czarist Russia, were given places of eminence in Communist governments. This is not only because Karl Marx was a Jew, nor is it because 'God's chosen people are Israelites.'"

They will not achieve supremacy until they destroy the Islamic and Christian countries all over the world."

Hasan later told The POST that his participation at the meeting in no way endorses the platform of Madole or his organization. His reason for speaking was that the Arab delegations are prepared to present their case before any American group which requests it.

On the other hand, the Syrian delegate announced by Madole as the speaker at his next meeting told The POST that he accepted the invitation without being aware that it was an anti-semitic hate group. He felt that his participation would now have to be reconsidered by the Syrian delegation.

German Court Releases Maker Of Death Gas

MUNICH (JP)—The admitted inventor and manufacturer of the lethal gas used in the Auschwitz Concentration camp gas chambers has been acquitted by a Frankfurt criminal court.

After Dr. Gerhard Peters eighth trial, Judge Dr. Hummerich ruled that it was not established beyond doubt that the defendant knew for what purpose the deadly Zyklon B he supplied to the camp was going to be used. The ruling quashed a previous six-year imprisonment sentence for complicity in the murder of hundreds of thousands of Jews.

In his plea, Dr. Peters said he was told that Zyklon B would be used to end the lives of incurably sick, which he believed because of reports of epidemics in the camp.

Haifa's Gay Flower Week Brightens Residents' Year

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—When Haifa holds a municipal celebration it transforms the entire city. It involves almost all of the citizenry, pre-empting the highways, and causes suspension of normal life for the period of the fete. Such a celebration was held a couple of weeks ago. Technically it was called Flower Day.

But Flower Day in Haifa lasted for a solid week. For six days this lovely metropolis on the slopes of Mount Carmel was transformed into a colorful spectacle. People and buildings alike were bedecked; streets and parks were gay patches of bloom. Each succeeding day witnessed mounting climax in the order of events until the final crescendo of all-night gaiety.

The week opened quietly enough with the national exhibition of children's paintings. Thousands of residents thronged through the corridors of the Haifa Municipal Museum to see and to praise the budding talents of artistic Israeli youth. The Haifa orchestra presented a special concert—and the cultural level of the week was set.

NO RESIDENT of Haifa who valued his reputation appeared in the streets of the city all week without a flower in his buttonhole, and if he had no private source of blooms, gal lassies on every street corner provided the colorful and aromatic decorations.

Flower Week was the culmination of plans for hundreds of amateur gardeners, who had brought their flower beds to the peak of perfection for the occasion. Jury committees toured the town, carefully studying the private gardens, making notes, and preparing their reports for the grand announcement of awards. Simultaneously all the city parks and gardens blossomed forth in riotous profusion of colors.

Every traffic circle in Haifa, every patch of bare sidewalk, each available spot of public property added its touch of green grass and vivid hues. Where broad expanse of shining flat asphalt might reflect summer sun, and cause glare for the town's motorists, pleasant patches of park and garden were introduced, cleverly breaking the glare, and providing soothing rest for weary eyes. Even the municipal sewage plant, located in the heart of town, was bedecked with growing plants and flowers.

WHAT ARE flowers without music? And so the youth bands and the youth orchestras of the city (eight of them) paraded the streets, serenading the citizens, halting traffic, and generally providing a carnival but orderly festive air.

Shop merchants competed with each other in window displays. The mayor held a party for the winners of the youth art competition, and a reception for the winners of the garden contest. Withered flowers in lapel buttonholes were replaced daily; the music played on; town gardeners kept their charges neat and fresh. The pace accelerated by the hour. Bunting and flags sud-

They Say

Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, professor of Jewish history at Hebrew Union college, Jewish Institute of Religion on receiving an honorary degree from Dropsie college:

"The intellectual level of American culture is higher than that of present-day Israel; there are as many, if not more, distinguished scholars in the field of the Science of Judaism here in the United States than there are in the new Jewish republic."

Jacques Torczyner, vice-president of the Zionist Organization of America:

"While the rank and file of American Jewry continues to show lively interest for Israel, most key positions in U.S. Jewry are, not in the last place due to the policy of leading circles in Israel, in the hands of assimilationists, to the detriment of any effort beyond the collection of money."

denly made their appearance on the main streets. Thousands of residents from the countryside flocked to the public Flower Show where the biggest blossoms, the most gorgeous flowers, the most unusual plants, the most original displays vied for public favor.

The climax was the Municipal Ball, the Grand Fete of Flower Week, held in the great expanse of the Mothers' Gardens, covering the entire side of a mountain. Who can count those in attendance? A dozen or more orchestras, ensembles and entertaining groups held forth simultaneously on as many platforms and acoustic shells in various parts of the garden.

ONE COULD DANCE, listen to music, munch fresh potato chips, watch the cascading springs under the variegated lights, sit on a private bench in a dark corner, pitch darts for prizes, witness a play, join in community singing or a spirited folk dance—the program had neither beginning nor end. No matter when you arrived, it was already under way, and no matter when you left, there was still bubbling life and activity. "All night" the schedule said, and though we left much earlier, no doubt there were gay celebrants still on hand when the first rays of the sun rose over the Galilee hills.

The tourists could watch and join in the week's fun if they wished, but this was no special show staged for their edification. This was Haifa's own Flower Week, held for Haifa's own residents. Coming as it did in the Shavuot season, Haifa's Flower Week was also in the best tradition of the original significance of this agricultural festival. Justly, it has become an annual event in Haifa.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH:

Can you tell me anything about the derivation of our family name, Wolochow? A friend tells us that the nearest Russian equivalent means "horse thief" and we are interested in defending the honor of our ancestors. To the best of our knowledge, the family name originated somewhere in the Ukraine. — MRS. H. WOLOCHOW, Richmond, California.

WOLOCHOW is a family name of geographical origin. It is taken from the name of the town of Wolochow Jar which is situated in the gubernia of Charkow in the Ukraine. The name indicates that the locality was originally founded by settlers from Roumania and has no connection with horses. There is a Ukrainian and Polish term Wallach which refers to the type of horse called "a gelding" in English. But Wolochow is totally unconnected with any livestock. It is here that your family probably originated.

LONG FOR 'REDEMPTION'

Falashas, Like Other Jews
Dream of Moving to Israel

By SIMON D. MESSING

Despite the fact that the Falashas, villagers and farmers in northern Ethiopia, have been dreaming for centuries, like other Jews, of redemption to the Holy Land, only a dozen of their youngsters have so far been brought to Israel.

Their native country has not imposed any restrictions on their migration, and there are indications that they would adjust well.

The bulk of their income in Ethiopia comes from ironsmithing, pottery making, and weaving, skills at which their neighbors say they are very good. (The Falashas claim their products appeal partly because of the low prices asked, in order "not to arouse the envy" of others.)

In Israel their skills could be used in agriculture, manufacturing, mechanics, and eventually, law (since they are excellent arguers in native litigation.)

IF THE Falashas were to go to Israel, they would undoubtedly melt into the Yemenite community, for when young Yemenite shoemakers came to their community during the Italian occupation of Ethiopia they invariably married Falasha girls.

Falasha Judaism is Mosaic (Biblical) not rabbinical.

The Orit (Torah) is their rule book of life. They observe the feasts and fasts of the Pentateuch with priestly chanting and dancing; drum, gong, and sistrum; incense and animal sacrifice—in imitation of the services in the ancient Temple in Jerusalem. They have a vague tradition of a "Fast of Esther," but none of Hanukah or the Talmud. Their priests ("Kahnnot") usually, but not always, the sons of priests, are elected by family patriarchs and older priests on the basis of learning and character.

Very few of the Falashas know Hebrew. Those who do learned the language from a Jewish scholar from France who ran a Hebrew school in Addis Ababa from 1908 to 1935, and was their first contact with Jews in other parts of the world.

ISRAEL'S ATTEMPTS to help the Falashas became semi-official in December, 1953, when the Israeli government sent a middle-aged rabbi to Ethiopia to pay his respects to the emperor and

When Congregation Beth Ahavah offered use of its building and classrooms, the city accepted. ## Instruments of Worship

Falasha priests display a large drum and small gongs used in religious services. sound him out as to recognition. leaders are also talking of dis- of Israel, and Falasha emigra- carding animal sacrifices, now tion. that "Jerusalem" (their term for Israel) is resurrected.

The rabbi found Emperor Haile Selassie warm toward the Falashas, who helped him during his exile, after Mussolini had invaded his country. But the emperor will not do anything at this time that might arouse the hostility of the neighboring Arabs which would harm his efforts to incorporate Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

The rabbi also convinced an educated Falasha in the Ethiopian government to leave his post and escort some priests and a dozen selected youngsters to Asmara, Eritrea, where the rabbi opened a Hebrew school.

In addition, the rabbi sent a report to the chief rabbinate in Israel and discussed the problems of Halacha (rabbinical decisions) which would arise if many Falashas entered Israel. The rabbi felt personally that Falasha marriages would be rabbinically valid, but not their divorces. Observance of the Sabbath and holy days he found acceptable, but not their slaughtering. As for intermarriage with other Jews, the principle of Tinog beyn Akum (a Jewish child raised by non-Jews) would be applicable.

THE MAIN thing left undecided was the official attitude, whether the State of Israel should or should not encourage the migration. The question has several facets.

The Falasha youngsters already in Israel have shown themselves to be excellent pupils. They are fascinated by textbooks, modern agriculture, and machine shop tools. They are planning to return home after two years and relearn what they have learned. Back in their villages Falasha

On the other hand, the Falashas feel that education is more important than emigration. They think they should be taught Hebrew and shown how to apply their manual dexterity to modern tools and machines.

Their educated leaders also think that if world Jewry really wants to help them it should first provide educational facilities, not encourage them to leave en masse without preparation and soon after their arrival add to the burdens of Israel.

FURTHERMORE, the Falashas are proud of their Ethiopian ruler, who welcomes any group which sincerely tries to promote the educational and economic progress of his subjects. They are proud of the fact that he has aided the development of an Israeli meat-packing plant in Asmara, where 20 Orthodox shochtim from Israel and two Israeli army veterinarians are employed.

Their leaders feel that once the transport problems are solved, Ethiopia can supply Israel with meat from its huge cattle surplus on the highland plateau and, in return, use the entire Israeli production of pharmaceuticals.

Meanwhile, the attention Israel is giving the Falashas, even without sponsoring migration, is benefiting their social status.

MUSIC

MAKING BIRNBAUM COLLECTION LIVE WOULD BE BENEFACTION FOR THE AGES

By JOSEPH GALE

This year is the 10th anniversary of an event in Jewish music, which, except for those who have heard and appreciated it, is by this time probably forgotten.

A decade ago, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Hebrew Union Colleges released the first 11 recorded excerpts from the Eduard Birnbaum manuscript collection of Jewish liturgical music, a compilation of more than 6,000 compositions and fragments, not including books, dating back hundreds of years. The collection rests in the library of the college, in Cincinnati, and "Israel Sings," an album of six 12-inch records, was issued to mark the school's 70th anniversary.

Dr. Eric Werner, chairman of the faculty at the Hebrew Union School of Sacred Music, under whose supervision the album was recorded, thus became indirectly responsible for making available to the general public a part of our precious heritage, dormant except to scholars, for more years than many of us can remember.

GALE

THE INITIAL price of the album was steep. At $15 each, not many people thought they could invest in it. But those who did were rewarded with a glimpse into a musical past as rich as a Sephardic tapestry. The music compensated in other ways, not the least of which was its indication of the astonishing variety and vitality of music written during the "forgotten" age of the Jew between the 16th and 18th centuries.

"Israel Sings" caused considerable excitement when issued, and the feeling was "Why stop here?" But no further word came from Cincinnati and today "Israel Sings" is almost like an echo. Copies of the album remain, and can be ordered from the college at probably less than the original price, but on this anniversary of a kind, it seems important to open the question of dipping into the Birnbaum archives for a second album, or albums, spanning most of the recordable portion of the collection.

While the original issue cost a fair amount of money to produce, the long-playing record has since come into being, and recording costs are lower. The industry picture has changed, and Dr. Werner is convinced that most, if not all, of the Birnbaum collection could be put on discs and enjoy a commercial sale.

PERHAPS THIS is merely enthusiasm speaking, but there is no doubt that if the college and I am told anything is possible with the assent of Dr. Nelson Glueck, its president) saw its way clear to a continuing program of record sponsorship, the world of Jewish music would be vastly enriched. In fact, it would be somewhat like allowing the populace into the Temple of 70 B.C.

To a traditionalist, this may be a blasphemous simile. But in the last few years, many traditions have lost their meanings. Barriers are crumbling, and some of the approaches to the ivory tower—themselves considered sacrosanct—have been trod hesitantly by mortal feet for the first time. There would thus seem to be no scholastic bar to opening the collection to the public, the only deterrent being to find a way to finance the venture.

RECENT TIMES have seen the publication of several books of old liturgy, the most prominent of them a comprehensive series by the college itself, now in process of book-by-book publication. Admirable as the project is, it is a ceremony for scholars and hardly will gain the attention of the average person. "Israel Sings" is the only real precedent for such an adventure in recording. There is no competition. A well-planned projection on long-playing records, coupled with a publicity program, would turn the trick, and in its way make recording history.

In the introduction to the album, this purpose is stated: "To make this beautiful music, imprisoned in the original manuscripts, live again for the edification and enjoyment of the members of our congregations and their auxiliary groups and of lovers of Jewish music generally."

Here, then, is an endowment worthy of men of mettle and imagination. In discussing a long-range program with Dr. Glueck or with Rabbi Maurice N. Eisenrath, president of the Union, and in searching to make funds available for such an endeavor, one becomes a benefactor of this age, and for ages to come.

ZOA Forgets It Didn't Originate Colonization

by M. Z. FRANK

Books and articles dealing with the history of Zionism are too often written with pens made of sugar dipped in honeyed ink. The real problems of the movement, much less its failures—from which we might learn to do better in the future—are rarely discussed and almost never investigated.

When Ben-Gurion reminds the Zionists of the indisputable historic fact that it wasn't the Zionist Organization that started Jewish colonization of Palestine, they just get mad. But they have no answer.

Here are the historic facts:

The first orange grove for Jews was planted by Sir Moses Montefiore in Jaffa in 1845. It was to be the beginning in the direction of agricultural colonization.

THE FIRST agricultural school for Jews was established in Palestine in 1868 by the very non-Zionist Alliance Israelite Universelle. The first Jewish agricultural colonies in Palestine were founded in 1878 or thereabouts by groups of natives and long-domiciled inhabitants of Jerusalem and of Safed. They had no connection with any Zionist movement.

The first colonists from Russia and Rumania who established settlements in Judea, Samaria and the Galilee were loosely organized individuals some of whom had a loose connection with a very loosely formed incipient Zionist body known as Hoveve-Zion (Lovers of Zion), which was in no position to help the colonists. The latter paid their own expenses and invested their own capital. When the latter proved inadequate, the Zionists were in no position to help. Baron Rothschild did.

IN 1890 the Hoveve-Zion got up some wind and sent one of their finest men, Vladimir (or Ze'ev) Tiomkin to found new colonies. . . . The colonists still had to invest their own funds and the Hoveve-Zion did not have any to lend them even on short-term credit, but Tiomkin did something. Anyway, Hadera was established. Some people thought it was a mess. A man from near Kiev by the name of Smilansky, whose son, Moshe Smilansky, was to become one of the most fascinating figures in Palestine, lost his money through Tiomkin's amateurish handling of the situation and had to give up the idea of settling in the Homeland. (That's what I gather from reading Moshe Smilansky's book Ba-aravah—In the Wilderness).

In 1897 the World Zionist Organization got started off in a by way under Herzl, but until 1907 it refused to engage in any colonial activity. It limited its work to diplomacy and propaganda. Colonization was financed by the anti-Zionist JCA (Jewish Colonization Association), by the non-Zionist Alliance Israelite Universelle and by Baron Edmund Rothschild, who was a Zionist if there ever was one, but who refused to have anything to do with organized Zionism.

ONLY THE JEWISH National Fund, which had a semi-independent existence (from the World Zionist Organization) carried on some colonial activity of a sort, including the planting of forests. Its funds were limited, but its faults were as large as those of the rich organizations. The representatives of the JCA, of the Alliance, of Baron Rothschild, of the JNF, all tended to develop into arrogant bureaucrats. They represented the money-giver and were not responsible to the people on the spot. You had "taxation with representation." It was pretty bad.

Let me quote Berl Katzenelson from words he wrote in 1943, shortly before his death:

"Palestine knew many administrators. Every benefactor, large or small, had his own administrators. Every society, large or small, had its own appointees. They were delegated to do good work and came with good intentions. But it seems as if a curse hung over them. An unbridgeable gulf separated them from the people whom they were to administer."

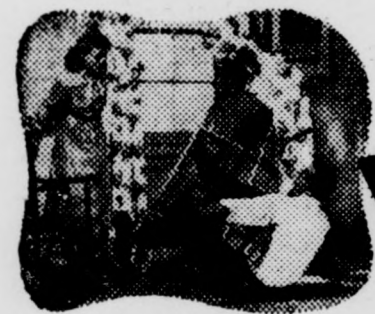

Such was the situation until Arthur Ruppin came on the scene.

The 'National Jewish Post is the only Anglo-Jewish weekly that has its own correspondents throughout the U. S. and the world.

Canadian Zionists Urged to Aliyah By Leader Gelber

VANCOUVER (JP) — Zionist leaders were told here that they could be expected to go to Israel personally.

E. Gelber, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, told a Pacific Region parley that, "Aliyah is an obligation of Zionist leadership."

"Unless this obligation is assumed solemnly," he said, according to The JEWISH POST of Vancouver, "the whole thing becomes a mockery."

Gelber, who is practicing what he preaches, is currently residing in Jerusalem, the paper said.

Gelber did not spare those Zionists who expatiate on their love for Israel but skillfully avoid the question of going there to live. "Aliyah has become almost a dirty word," he asserted. Gelber told his audience that he had been asked to serve on an Israel government committee to encourage aliyah from the West.

GRADUATION, PROM TIME SPURS DEMAND FOR TASTY GOODIES

By SARAH LIEBER

June continues a lovely month. It's prom time, and graduation party time for youngsters from kindergarten to college, now that even nursery schools hold "graduation" ceremonies. And excitement runs high. Every day there seems to be another request for either a recipe or a contribution to the refreshments committee spreads.

Sometimes the young ladies of the honored class themselves agree to be on the production end as well as the receiving, and then indeed are there last-minute cries for help from Mama.

In some of the communities the work as well as the expense is shared, with each woman providing her own specialty. Some of the prettiest, and most appropriate sandwiches are made by one tireless beria who prepares stacks of dainty diploma-shaped finger sandwiches by rolling the bread around asparagus spears, or tasty spreads, and tying the rolls with ribbon in the class colors.

Another popular balaboste contributes a decorated cake every year. She tells me she uses her favorite standard cake recipe, such as the one below, and doubles the proportions, then makes the batter in three cookie pans so as to have a large layer cake in the rectangular shape she finds easiest to decorate with fancy frosting. Her daughter must inherit her skill and patience with esthetic things, for she is chairman of the flower arrangements for this year's party.

STANDARD TWO-EGG CAKE

- ½ cup vegetable shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 2 cups cake flour
- 2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- ½ tsp. almond extract

Cream shortening and sugar until thoroughly blended and creamy. Add egg yolks and flavoring. (When using an electric mixer you may add eggs whole being careful not to overbeat). Sift flour before measuring. Then sift again with baking powder and salt. There are cake flours on the market with baking powder and salt added, so read the label carefully before using. Add flour alternately with milk. Mix only enough to blend. Do not beat. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in greased layer pans 25 to 30 minutes at 375 degrees or until the cake comes away from the sides of the pan. Makes two layers 8 or 9 inches.

Variations:

For a parve cake you may substitute orange juice for the milk, adding ½ teaspoonful of baking soda directly in the juice.

Caution: This will froth, so use a large measuring cup. Omit flavoring, but add grated lemon or orange rind if desired.

For a marble cake remove half of the batter to pans. Add two ounces of baking chocolate, melted, to the remaining batter. Pour into pan, forming a pattern with a table knife. Bake as above. For black and white cake remove one-half of the batter to one greased pan. Add two ounces of melted baking chocolate to the remaining half of the batter. Make the second layer of this dough. Frost with chocolate on the top, and vanilla frosting on the sides of the finished cake.

UNCOOKED FROSTING

- ½ cup butter
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 3 tbsps. cream
- ½ tsp. desired flavoring

Sift sugar and blend in butter which has been softened at room temperature. Warm the cream to facilitate absorption. Add gradually to mixture, varying the amount if necessary for desired stiffness. Add flavoring and spread at once on cooled cake. For chocolate frosting add melted ounce of baking chocolate. For parve frosting use fruit juice or fruit puree (baby food is fine). The amount will vary with the consistency of the fruit.

DECORATIVE FROSTING

- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- ¼ tsp. cream of tartar
- 2 egg whites
- ½ tsp. flavoring

Sift together sugar and cream of tartar. Add stiffly beaten whites and flavoring. Press through a decorating tube to write names or form fancy fluting, using the tips provided with the tube. A few drops of vegetable coloring will give the desired pastel shade.

COCONUT CAKE

- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ cup butter
- 3 egg whites
- ½ tsp. almond flavoring
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 cups cake flour
- 3 tps. baking powder
- ½ cup coconut

Cream sugar and butter together until very light and fluffy. Add flavoring. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Fold in coconut, reserving a small amount to sprinkle on top of the batter. Bake in well-greased loaf or square pan at 350 degrees about 45 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean.

A Word To the Wives

Some of the old hints are so well known to us older balabostes that we may at times forget there is a whole new generation of kitchen knstler who may not be familiar with them.

For instance: To measure shortening, applying the lesson from high school physics that fat replaces its own mass in water, we fill the measuring cup with the difference between the contents of the cup and the desired amount. On pouring off the water we have the desired amount.

When sifting flour, never shake the cup because flour packs easily and will give us too much for accuracy. Sift flour just before measuring. A piece of wax paper or a clean paper bag is good for this.

Honey or syrup pours from the measuring cup most easily if the cup is greased and the liquid sweetener is slightly warm. Evaporated or powdered milk is an excellent substitute for fresh milk in baking.

If all ingredients for baking are at room temperature before mixing the cake will be more successful.

Und zo weiter. This list of helpful hints could go on and on. But a little common sense, and a careful reading of directions will help anyone to make a success of the happy venture.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

By HELEN COHEN

She Helps People
Turn The Scales

In the old days, a worthy mother in Israel would be praised for such things as turning her hand to feed the hungry.

The glaring difference between life then and in this opulent civilization is that another kind of helping hand is required now. Just by chance, I learned of a lady who, out of a desire to be helpful, is giving of her time and knowledge to bring happiness to others by—that's right—helping them to go hungry, so they can lose weight.

For the past year in our community, Mrs. Ernest Lee has been successfully working with overweight people without asking any other reward than the pleasure she has in knowing they are happier and healthier once the excess pounds have vanished.

Her record to date is 90 victories over demon fat, with only three failures to mar her record. Most of the dieters are women, though 10 men have taken the hard road down the scale. Ages range all the way from a child of 6 through teen-agers to grandmas of over 50.

AT THE moment, there are 40 persons under her wing, though several are about ready to be dismissed because their goal is attained. There is a waiting list of people ready to take their places.

Most have needed to lose about 20 to 30 pounds, although she has also worked with excessive overweight, such as the woman who went down from 215 to 155.

A trained hospital dietician, Hermine Lee requires a doctor's written permit before working with anyone. She does not use drugs, is opposed to them, unless the doctor recommends it. Some of her proteges (I dislike calling them patients) are even referred to her by doctors, who hope she can help them. She will give a prospect a month to show results. If, by that time, the scales remain unchanged, meaning the person is not getting down to business, she will no longer work with him.

BESIDES BEING qualified for this project of hers by her background, Mrs. Lee approaches the subject with the understanding of one who traveled the hard road herself. After a year's training as a hospital dietician at Michael Reese hospital in Chicago

Wedding

WOLFSON—COLTER—Mr. and Mrs. Irving Colter of Brooklyn announce the marriage of their daughter Joan to Dr. Jerome H. Wolfson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Wolfson, of Brooklyn on June 4.

and two years at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, she went overseas during the war in the Hopkins unit.

In Australia, New Guinea and the Dutch East Indies, she and her fellow nurses gradually began to tip the scales alarmingly, what with no fresh food and only high-caloried rations, such as chocolate and raisins, available. At one point, 5 foot 3½ Mrs. Lee was up to 165 pounds.

On the way home from the war zone she determined to do something about it, especially since she had been writing to the young man who is now her husband and whom she was soon to meet in person. The count by the first date was about 120, where she has remained since.

ABOUT A YEAR ago our heroine met a lovely young girl who would, she felt, have been a real beauty if she weren't so you-know-what. Emboldened by her wish to help, she approached the girl and asked if she could work with her on the problem. With that first success under her belt, Lady Lee was on her way.

She gives them suitable diets, weighs them in once a week, pairs two friends off to encourage one another—a la Alcoholics Anonymous—and once they have made it, works with them to become stabilized, which means to learn how to eat some of the food they used to without overeating. She doesn't believe in screwy diets, warns her brood that if they want to lose all over instead of in spots and keep up their health, they must eat properly of the required foods—and she can tell by looking at them if they haven't.

Her mister, she says, has been wonderful about her project and will even help weigh in some of the people if she's busy or away.

Hermine Lee is quite enthusiastic and happy about her contribution to the welfare of the community and what with 90 grateful people including her in their prayers, I don't blame her. I should point out one thing.

Mrs. Lee gets no remuneration for her efforts. Except, of course, as she says, the pleasure she derives in helping others. Partly, she explained, she did it this way because she felt her husband and four children came first in her time, but she also feels, and I agree with her, that the fact that her services are gratis may be a contributing factor in her high percentage of success. Once a person pays a beauty salon or some such reducing parlor, she sort of turns over the responsibility to it to show results or else. This way Mrs. Overweight is on her own.

FAMILY PSYCHOLOGIST

BOY WHO LEFT JUDAISM MAY REQUIRE
AID FROM RABBI OR A PSYCHOLOGIST

By MILTON A. SAFFIR, Ph. D.

Director, Chicago Psychological Guidance Center

Until very recently Barry Feldman's parents were quite satisfied with him. At 16 he was a well-developed young man, on the honor roll at high school, and a leader in a half-dozen clubs and other activities at school. Though he did not talk much about himself with his parents, he had many friends, Jewish and Gentile.

When Barry was young he had attended Sunday school at a near-by temple. When he was 11, mother suggested the Bar Mitzva class, but Barry was uninterested and the matter was dropped. Though the Feldmans had always lived in a Jewish neighborhood, they had never joined a synagogue or temple, and they never gave much thought to their Jewishness. Barry stayed home for the High Holy Days until he got into high school, but then he felt he could not afford the absences. Religion played a very minor role in the Feldman home.

TWO WEEKS AGO Barry told his parents he had been invited to speak on a church radio program. It was only then that they learned of his conversion to Christianity at a Youth-for-Christ rally several months earlier. He had gone with a high school friend, and was one of those who came to the platform during the height of the evangelist's exhortation.

The shock which Mr. and Mrs. Feldman felt was severe. Nor did it lessen when they found themselves unable to change Barry's views by arguments, pleas, or threats. They now feel a desperate need for help or advice.

THERE ARE two main possibilities in trying to explain Barry's state of mind. It is not unusual for the adolescent to feel an intense interest in religion, and it seems quite possible that Barry's dramatic and unusual religious experience comes from the lack of any positive religious values in his home. The vacuum left by the absence of any real feeling or understanding of Judaism could very well set the stage for the powerful impact of the highly emotional evangelistic rally.

If the foregoing explanation is correct, the parents might be able to influence Barry toward a return to Judaism through the help of a rabbi. It might well be that Barry would respond to friendly explanations by the rabbi and thus find in his own religion a deeper and more wholesome satisfaction of his spiritual needs.

The other possibility in trying to understand Barry is that he is suffering from some emotional upset or maladjustment that requires psychological or psychiatric treatment. If the rabbi's efforts are no more successful than the parents' have been, they should seek professional help.

THE DIGEST OF THE YIDDISH PRESS

Bibles for Hotels OK'd
But Who'll Pay?

by Rabbi Samuel M. Silver

To reintroduce Jews to their own Bible, Editor Trude Weiss-Rosmarin urged in her JEWISH SPECTATOR some time ago that Hebrew-English copies of Scriptures be placed in the rooms of Jewish hotels.

Offered to make the distribution of the Jewish Publication Society would provide the Bibles gratis. When JPS said it couldn't afford that, others wanted to know why the hotel men were willing to spend so much on luxury items to enhance the physical wellbeing of their guests and wouldn't spend anything on their spiritual welfare. Others replied that it would be unfair to expect the cost of such an enterprise to be borne by one group, those who own hotels.

In the DAY-JOURNAL, Aaron Zeitlin writes that the Jewish community ought to provide the means for supplying the Bibles, as the Gideon Society does for the double-Testament with which it stocks general hotels. Zeitlin disapproves of only one feature of the Weiss-Rosmarin plan, her recommendation that the Jewish Bibles eschew the black binding of the JPS Bibles in favor of lighter colors so that potential Bible-readers will realize that in Judaism Scriptures are not deemed lugubrious. Scolds Zeit-lin: The Bible should not be approached as something which one should "enjoy."

GREAT ONE-MAN SHOW
PROUD HE'S JEW

Far and away the greatest one-man show in Broadway history is "Comedy and Music," featuring that great Dane, Victor Borge, pianist, comedian, and Connecticut poultry farmer.

In a recent NEW YORKER magazine profile, Borge was penetratingly biographized save for one feature of his background. It took the FORWARD's ubiquitous interviewer, S. Regensberg, to apprise the public that Borge (ne Berg Rosenbaum) is a Jew, son of Orthodox parents (now deceased), a Bar Mitzva of a Copenhagen synagogue, and now president of the Society of Danish Jews in America which he is aiding in the assembling of funds for trees in Israel.

After being convulsed by Borge's performance, Regensberg enjoyed a chat with the actor, during which he learned some of the highlights of Borge's life story.

Among other things proudly recounted by Borge: In 1948, he returned to Denmark, did a command performance for King Frederick and then sent the king a check for a half million kroner with a note which read, "From one Danish Jew for the aid and friendship which Denmark extended towards Jews during the Nazi occupation . . ."

BOOKS

ONLY REVIEWER CAN KEEP UP WITH STREAM OF JEWISH JUVENILES

By ABRAHAM BURSTEIN

Whereas there was a time not too long ago when appearance of a book for the Jewish child was a matter of surprise, today only a reviewer is able or inclined to keep up with the mass of books on Jewish and Old Testament themes now streaming out of publishers' offices.

Most beautiful of recent Bible juveniles is Elijah: The Man Who Went To Heaven, written and illustrated by Don Muth Jr. ($2.75, Pacific Press, Mountain View, Cal.). Opposite each page excellently paraphrasing the Bible words is a full-page color illustration, like a woodcut; rarely do such lucid and beautiful pictures grace any American work for the young.

An entirely different kind of work from the literary angle is Margherita Franchiotti's A Cow In The Cloud ($2.75 Oxford). This is the story of Noah and the Ark, reconstructed to the size of an adult novel, with the unique addendum of four children helping the shipwright, and then also finding refuge on the Ark with the Noah family and the animals. The book is a most interesting and imaginative expansion of a meagrely related biblical tale.

FROM TWAYNE comes Fascinating Facts About American Jewish History, by Charles M. Segal ($2.75). This contains a vast amount of replies to queries concerning the whole range of Jewish life on this continent, and is therefore most valuable for these tercentenary times. The same publishers, under the Bookman imprint, publish the textbooks of the American Council for Judaism, the most recent of which is David Goldberg's Holidays for American Judaism ($2.75). Though Rabbi Goldberg first posits the necessary abrogation of most traditional observances, he comes back to them repeatedly, and mentions "that beloved Jewish prophet or Rabbi, named Jesus."

Only one textbook this time—Pupil's Wordbook for Hayehudi Harishon 1 and 2, by Miriam Klein (85 cents, United Synagogue), beautifully printed and pedagogically invaluable, like all the books in this series. For gadgets we must again turn to Ktav the indefatigable. This publishing house has added to fun in learning with its Bible Funland, by Robert Sol ($1.25); here are many pages of outline drawings, with appropriate verses, and hundreds of colored stickers to apply in the right places. Ktav is also the producer of gold-covered chocolate coins as Purim Gelt for Shalach Monos, and many similar products for mind and stomach both. And as to Purim, the Jonathan David Company has published a fine Megillah, with a new translation by Alfred I. Kolatch, for use of young and old; it costs but 15 cents, twice as much in hard cover.

Addenda For The Young Reader

A spicy variety of published material has recently been added to the Jewish youth arsenal:

First: "Mish Mosh, The Jewish Word Game"—a kind of Yiddish Scrabble published by Shapiro and Shapiro, of Brooklyn ($2.60).

Then "Hebr-Aid" (Bloch, 30 cents)—a card in a slotted envelope, that can form all Hebrew letter-vowel combinations; on the other side, the more common Hebrew blessings.

The best juvenile story book of the season is by Sadie Rose Weilerstein—"Dick: The Horse That Kept the Sabbath" (Bloch, $1.50). The title should give you an idea of this charming, whimsical story of another day.

For the more scholarly teen-agers two important reprints must be reported: Solomon Zeitlin's "Maimonides" (Bloch, $3.50)—a biography every young or older student should read at this time; and Gail Hoffman's revised "The Land and People of Israel" (Lippincott, $2.75), containing all one would want to know about the new State, with pictures and map. For history, read Harry H. Fein's "Farewell to Samaria" (Verndale, $3.60), which tells all about the last days of the kingdom of Israel.

Games for everyone 9 years old and up will be provided by Joseph Leeming's "Fun With Pencil and Paper" (Lippincott, $2.95). Pages and pages of stunts.

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR

The other day as I was driving back to the office, I saw a bearded, long-cloaked Jew waiting at the street corner for a bus. I pulled over to the curb and asked him in my best Yiddish where he was going.

He told me the address, which was that of a large merchant who is traditionally known to give contributions to meshulochim, which in case you are one of those who were deprived of even a minimum knowledge of Yiddish words, is a collector for Jewish organizations, usually Orthodox and usually a yeshiva, which is a school.

As it turned out the merchant in question had moved some distance away from his old habitat, and I thoughtfully drove the meshuloch to the new address, which would have been difficult for a stranger to locate.

The merchant in question was out, but his secretary would have given him a check for $5 which is the usual amount given to all meshulochim.

His partner was in, and he called me aside, being a friend, and poured out his woes on my shoulder.

EVERY DAY, he exclaimed, four or five meshulochim came in, and the amount of money thus contributed over a year, ran into the thousands of dollars. He distrusted them, he wanted to know how he could get his firm's name removed from their list, and he wanted his rabbi to call him hereafter before he would give a contribution, and what is more, hereafter he was going to cut down his gifts to $2 each, in an effort to discourage them.

I gave him my view, which was that he should not cut out gifts to these people and the organizations they represent. I agreed that there was no way of knowing whether the money went for the purpose for which it was given, or how much of the money finally reached that destination, and I admitted that very likely some of the meshulochim were dishonest. But I said that my father never turned one away, and that this was a tradition in Jewish life—to raise money in this way, not alone for yeshivos and institutions, but for a daughter's dowry, or for a man's own needs, and that its disappearance would come quick enough without the few stalwarts who understood this tradition turning their backs on it.

ABOUT TWO months ago, another generous Jewish leader in the community began to make protestations to the local federation that something should be done about this practice. It was getting out of hand, he argued, and he could give you the many cases where meshulochim resorted to practices which were wrong. They would drive up in a taxi. They would refuse small amounts, thus insulting the givers, they sometimes travelled by plane and by Pullman, which was not in keeping with their purposes, and so forth.

As far as I know, a committee of the federation did meet, but what came out of it, I don't know.

I have a suggestion.

My suggestion is that there be a central registration somewhere in the national Jewish community, perhaps by the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. This would be a simple matter. The meshulochim or preferably the organizations would be listed, and the work they do described and in some general way even evaluated. This list and the additional information would then be distributed to the local federations and welfare funds of the U.S. Then when a meshuloch came to town, there would be a way of at least checking on his validity.

The CJFWF, if it decided to take on this task, should entrust it to the hands of a committee made up of Orthodox Jews, so that there would be no question as to the intent of the committee and its generosity in evaluating the work of the various organizations and meshulochim.

IN MOST COMMUNITIES the federation does already have a local committee which disburses funds assigned to it for traditional institutions. Usually a rabbi is chairman of the committee, and an attempt is made by the community to deal justly with its commitments to the various yeshivas. But this system does not seem to work. Many local businessmen tend to ignore the committee, which because of limited funds can dole out only relatively small amounts. This breakdown of the local system is, of course, abetted by the meshulochim, who in any community can collect hundreds of dollars as compared to the 25 or 50 that they might possibly get from the funds of the local committee.

It's a subject worth considering. There can be no difference between collecting for the Satmer rebbe and his yeshiva than there is in collecting for Brandeis university. Each is equally as authentic, as far as the Jewish community is concerned, and each does its collecting outside of the welfare funds and federations.

There is a difference in the knowledge of some parts of the Jewish community about the two institutions. All know of Brandeis university, but only the Orthodox are familiar with the Satmer rebbe and his work.

This is a problem which I hope can be worked out. As between turning our back altogether on the meshulochim and tolerating some dishonest and unpleasant ones, we prefer the latter.

SALUTE TO THE ISRAELITE

The occasion of the 100th anniversary of The AMERICAN ISRAELITE, the oldest Anglo-Jewish paper in the United States, should be the signal for meetings in every Jewish community where there is an Anglo-Jewish paper.

The Anglo-Jewish press in the United States needs nothing so much as acceptance and stature. That it has come a long way in this respect in the past decade is a truism that is applicable also to every positive agency in the United States Jewish community.

But too often the local Anglo-Jewish paper does not receive the recognition its service to the community warrants. As an educational arm of the community, in many respects no less important than other facets of the education apparatus, the local Anglo-Jewish paper has been forced to fight its way up in public esteem almost rung by rung.

The American Association of English Jewish Publishers might well think in terms of arranging such nation-wide celebrations. It would be simple enough to enlist the cooperation of all national Jewish organizations, most of whom are served weekly by the local Jewish press, and with this as a start, the local community organizations could be persuaded to arrange celebrations which would serve to center attention on the service the local Jewish papers are rendering.

In this connection, a word of praise is due to Henry Segal, publisher of The AMERICAN ISRAELITE. There is no Anglo-Jewish publication in the United States which has better followed the high standards of journalism. Here is one paper that has stood its ground when severely attacked for taking editorial positions which were not popular with various elements of the community. When it comes to editorial courage, no Anglo-Jewish paper is blessed with more of it than The ISRAELITE.

No doubt the publisher of The AMERICAN ISRAELITE has been frustrated by the same limitations which prevent the local Anglo-Jewish papers from giving as comprehensive news coverage as they know how to provide. Yet here is one paper that has followed the truest traditions of the press in all its particulars.

The AMERICAN ISRAELITE can be the symbol for an annual Jewish press appreciation week to fall on a date close to the anniversary of the founding of the paper by Rabbi Isaac Mayer Wise.

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

THERE IS MUCH of incidental good in the publishing of a newspaper, even a Jewish one. No one knows just what the influence of a paper like The Post really is, or for that matter any Anglo-Jewish paper.

A Jewish paper keeps the readers informed, and it often entertains them. It stimulates subscribers to this and that Jewish activity, and, no doubt, its beneficial result is felt in all areas of Jewish life.

And sometimes it is nothing more or less than a shadchan, that venerable Jewish institution which unfortunately is held in disdain these days just when it is needed as badly as it ever was in the past.

So here's a letter from what is obviously a very much pleased reader, which we're happy to share with you, and which most certainly bears out our contention of the many ways in which an Anglo-Jewish paper is useful.

Editor, NATIONAL JEWISH POST:

Have you ever wondered about the outcome of an advertisement such as you printed on Friday, April 24, 1953? The ad read:

FEMALE TEACHER, age 19, desires to correspond with intellectual, 24 to 28 years of age. Please write Miss Shoulemite Elkayam, 52 Millel St., Haifa, Israel.

Well, my father sent me your papers every week while I was in the U. S. 8th Army Medical Corps in Korea for 17 months. Although I received the paper two weeks late, it was still wonderful to receive it.

I answered the advertisement and I corresponded with Miss Elkayam until I left Korea on May 1, 1954, and then I resumed corresponding after I was honorably discharged. On July 4 I boarded an El Al Air Line plane for Lod, Israel, near Tel Aviv. Miss Elkayam, her mother, and sister met me, and I went to Haifa with them.

On Aug. 10, 1954, we were wed, and I spent a wonderful seven months in Israel. We both arrived in New York on Jan. 25, and then we went to my home in Beaufort, S. C., where I am attending the University of South Carolina for a year before going to Chicago to get my doctor's degree in optometry.

I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for introducing me to my wife.

Very sincerely yours,

WOLFE HERSCHEL ROSENTHAL

Suggestion To 'Join Hands'
Seen As Call To 'Set-Apart'

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

In your Apr. 29 editorial, "We Must Join Hands," you speak first of the failure of the recent Tercentenary celebration to catch the imagination of the Jewish community. In my opinion, this failure to arouse enthusiasm may be due to the growing integration of persons of the Jewish faith in respect to the rest of the American population. They do not see themselves as loyal to a separate Jewish community.

In addition, the great majority of American Jews are descendants of persons who came to this country at the very earliest in the two decades following the close of the Civil War. So they do not feel any particularly strong connection with the few Sephardin who arrived in New Amsterdam in 1654.

You speak of the fragmentation of the Jewish community, saying that in Europe the development was from the kehillah, but that here in the United States we have Reform Jews, Dallas Conservative Jews, Orthodox Jews, Zionists, anti-Zionists, United Jewish Appeal Jews, etc. Out of which you hope there will develop a "real" Jewish community.

Would such a development not be a regression to the European pattern of a Jewish community, set apart from the rest of society? Is it not a better goal for Jewry here to work toward an ever-more complete participation in American life, at the same time allowing as great a multiplicity as possible for the expression of Jewishness within that framework, with all shades represented, from Classical Reform on the one hand to the Hasidic Jews of the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn on the other?

ROBERT M. BRIMM.

Germans Delay Jews' Claims, Says Reader, Confirming Post

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

Having just returned from a trip to Europe, I can confirm the statement made in your article "Victims Of Nazis May Die Before Being Compensated."

During my five-week stay in Berlin, I had the chance to talk with many victims of Nazi oppression, who returned to Germany only to rush through their indemnification, and restitution, claims. It seems that the German authorities deliberately delay the processing of claims filed by Jewish survivors, while former members of the Nazi party, the SS, SA, and the Wehrmacht, whose retirement pays were only recently granted by the Bonn government, are already receiving monthly payments, as well as capital settlements.

The Jewish survivors of Berlin are in dire need. Many of them have waited for five years and now depend on the welfare organization of the Jewish community.

The German administration asks for documents, certificates, in order to deny justified claims by Jewish survivors whose families were murdered. In my own claim against the Bonn government, I have to prove that my relatives were killed, yet the administration carefully avoids giving me any information as to the actions undertaken by those officials of the Reich who actually committed mass murder, only to be rewarded by retirement pays.

The German government knows that the majority of Jewish survivors cannot present any papers. Most of the documents were destroyed by the Nazis. Only a few lucky ones could smuggle out their records. In any event, the dead Jews cannot speak up and accuse the killers.

Rabbi Defends Colleagues' Work

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

Concerning your editorial, "Speak Up Rabbis," (JP, May 27, '55) what possessed you to vent your rage? Which rabbis are you talking about? Are you familiar with the paralyzing duties of rabbis, in teaching and preaching, indoctrinating, inculcating morals, ethics, religion, reverence, duty, and dignity to his constituents? This is only part of the weighty and agonizing responsibilities of religious leaders who preside over services, guide education, visit the sick, comfort the mourners, guide the perplexed, and aid the impoverished.

What are the burning issues? Shall a rabbi engage in odious political chicanery or bomb his community into hysterical partisanship? Is it not a sacred duty of a rabbi to challenge yet keep peace, sympathy and understanding for those that oppose?

It's an old Jewish maxim:

"The world is built up with love and kindness," not with arguments for the sake of argument, not with issues that are not there. The rabbis I know do not know of any four-month vacation—they are too busy. They get a month to regenerate their tired minds, bodies, and spirits (most of them don't take it). They need it!

It is inconceivable that because you have run out of editorials that you hold to ridicule those that work so hard and so long and do so much good because their loves are dedicated. There is little enough for our intellectually impoverished generation to take from it. Why do you?

elements are guilty of I'd have my hands full. I have reference to M. Z. Frank's book "Sound the Great Trumpet." (JP, Apr. 22, '55.) He makes the statement that "every pious Jew says (tikoh beschaufor godaul lecherusenu, etc.)." This statement is positively incorrect. It should read "every Orthodox or (American) Conservative (should) say . . ."

We Liberal Jews have long eliminated these semi-subversive concepts from our prayerbooks and substituted more acceptable versions to be recited by adherents of the Jewish communion.

RABBI WEINSTEIN SAYS:

Mixed Dating, Yes — But Let Youngsters Appreciate Jewish Beauties' Values

(Reprinted From Last Week's Chicago Edition)

I AM FOR MIXED DATING. Begad! to echo Carlyle, I had better be. My children have been brought up in free democratic communities. They have been taught to judge persons on their individual merits. To tell them that they can do all this, but must not accept or make dates with non-Jewish youngsters would be as tantalizing as to tell them that they can hang their clothes on the hickory limb but must not go into the water.

WEINSTEIN

It would be worse than that. It would be an oblique admission that our Jewish tradition is not strong enough to stand up to the free trade of ideas or that it withers with the first breath of young love. We would be indirectly confessing that the only way to preserve the integrity of the Jewish group is to build a ghetto wall around us. We would be echoing the defeatist lament of Nachman of Bratislava and of the Neohasidic Ludwig Lewisohn that the Enlightenment and Emancipation were curses, not blessings. There is the further insinuation that the humanistic emphasis of modern culture, the interfaith and interracial experiments of American democracy are of strictly limited significance. They can be given verbal obeisance, but God forbid, must not be put into practice.

Of course, there is a margin of danger. A certain portion of our Jewish young people will intermarry. That is a calculated risk, and we must accept it, even as we must accept other calculated risks in life. This does not mean that we cannot or should not do anything to reduce the risk. Quite to the contrary! We should give our young people a true knowledge of the beauty of our tradition and a deep appreciation of its values for mankind, so that they will consider the preservation of that tradition as one of the high goals of their own lives.

We should thoroughly discuss with our young the many difficulties of mixed marriage and share with them the data which our sociologists have gathered concerning the incidence of divorce among mixed marriages. We should honestly convey to them our own feelings about mixed marriages, and not be coy with them in so doing.

Our young people have a point when they reveal that their parents are often indifferent to Jewish affiliations and live a life largely untouched by any Jewish commitment, but suddenly generate a great deal of hysteria when the son or daughter goes out with a Gentile. Our young people can be expected to respect our feelings and our values but they cannot be expected to revere our neuroses, our guilt feelings and our suppressed tribal memories.

Nor must we forget that dating time often corresponds with the rebellious phase of adolescence. What the parents forbid — especially without good and/or acceptable reasons — becomes a special challenge to the youth insecurely groping for his independence. He goes for a mixed date, even if she is a bit of a drip, because he must assert his right to be himself. It behooves a parent to understand this behavior pattern.

We read the Book of Ruth at Confirmation time. In the same service at which we affirm our faith in the glory of the revelation at Sinai, we read the pastoral idyl of a mixed marriage that brought King David to the leadership of Israel. We should have enough confidence in our convictions to let them take their chances in the free trade of experience.

When An Arab Praises a Jew, That's Really Worth Noting

When an Arab praises a Jew, that is something. . . . The large Arab daily FALASTIN, published in the old city of Jerusalem, had this to say about Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion . . .

"Whatever else we Arabs should say about David Ben-Gurion, it is necessary to add that we respect him. Let's speak the truth. He was a poor immigrant when he arrived in Palestine, a simple, even unskilled, worker; and he has become Prime Minister. . . . Is such a thing possible in an Arab state?"

Novel Gift

A novel testimonial gift was prepared for the tribute Baltimore paid to one of its leading citizens, Jacob Blaustein, when he was awarded the Governor's Medal. The novel gift was a giant silver tray on which more than 250 American and foreign statesmen had engraved messages, among them former President Truman, Vice-President Nixon, Adlai Stevenson, Prime Minister Moshe Sharett, David Ben-Gurion, Ambassador Abba Eban, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Bar and Bat Mitzva youngsters who spend months learning the portion of the Prophets which they recite at services won't envy Marshall E. Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks, of Wilkes Barre, Pa., who conducted the entire service at his Bar Mitzva Saturday morning, and read the entire portion of the week from the Torah. To fill out the occasion, Marshall served as cantor for the Friday evening services and then led the congregation in the chanting of the Sabbath melodies at the Sabbath afternoon service. He completed his triumph by conducting the Sabbath evening services. The entire community was invited to Ohav Zedek congregation for the occasion.

RELIGION, POLITICS TIE-UP IN ISRAEL HIT BY ZIONIST

TEL AVIV (JP)—Religion in Israel has become what it cannot be, the basis for political parties, says Dr. Peretz Bernstein, leader of the General Zionist party and Minister of Trade and Industry, in an article published recently.

Dr. Bernstein opposes religion as a political instrument. He feels that Jewish faith in the Jewish state cannot be a private affair of religious Jews only, and freedom of religion is a problem toward which a free, democratic state must adopt an unequivocal position.

"A large number of Jews," continued Dr. Bernstein, "have lost

Mikve Issue Splits New Zealand Jewish Community

Jewish Community

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (JP)—A proposal that funds be raised to build a new Hebrew school here, rather than a mikve, has split the Jewish community.

The people who want the Hebrew school say the present school, built in the 1920s, is hopelessly inadequate in size and that its classrooms are dark and widely scattered. They say, further, that a modern school with professional teachers would benefit more people than ritual baths.

Letters to the press have also argued that the mikve was necessary in small Russian or Polish villages where the houses had no facilities for washing, but are not necessary in New Zealand's modern houses, with their baths and showers. Other arguments say that few women would use the ritual bath and few brides would want to undergo the embarrassment of the ancient custom, if the mikve were erected.

respect for religion because the religious parties are using it for political purposes and party intrigues."

"The large majority of Israel's population cannot accept Torah law because it would mean religious compulsion and restriction of personal freedom by the obligation to follow all kinds of orders and prohibitions which this majority does not recognize."

The minister is "in favor of certain religious principles which must be safeguarded by the State" and has no solution to the problem of relationship between state and religion, except that religious leadership should strive toward the renewal of principles in the light of modern life.

Finally Made It

It took two acts of Congress to reunite the Edelstein family. Joseph Edelstein (center), now living in Brooklyn, came to the United States in 1949 under the D. P. Act of 1948. His brother, Jacob (right), with his wife, Rachel, unable to qualify under the Act because they had not been living in a D. P. area, had to wait for another opportunity, which came with the enactment of the Refugee Relief Act. With their three children, Suzanne, 7, Anne, 5, and Martine, 1½, they are shown here as they arrived in New York with the aid of the United HIAS Service, the Jewish international migration agency, to join their Brooklyn kin. Joseph, Jacob, and Rachel Edelstein, all victims of Nazi persecution, are veterans of concentration camps and forced labor. United HIAS officials stated that Jacob and his family would reside with brother Joseph in Brooklyn until they can find an apartment of their own.

FEDERATION FACTS

Borinstein Home Cares For Growing Aged Group

The Joseph and Annie Borinstein Home for the Jewish Aged is the outgrowth of one of the first Jewish agencies established in Indianapolis. Fifty-two years ago it began as an operation for the care of Jewish homeless transients sponsored and financed by a group of volunteers. In 1925, the organization became part of the Jewish Welfare Federation and was reorganized as the Jewish Shelter House and Old Home, combining the care of transients and elderly, impoverished members of the Jewish community.

In 1938, the children of Joseph and Annie Borinstein turned over their family residence at 3516 Central ave. to the Home, and, in February, 1939 the agency moved into its present location, changing its name to honor the parents of the donor. Concurrently, the Home dropped its services to transients and concentrated on services to the aged.

EXPANSION

In 1951, the board of directors of the Home and the Jewish Welfare Federation, recognizing that heavy demands on the Home were creating a constant waiting list, drew up plans to double the Home's capacity by adding nine bedrooms and facilities for eight infirmary beds. For that purpose, the Jewish Welfare Federation allocated $90,000 to be paid over a period of years from capital funds.

The new addition was built in 1952, and the Borinstein Home is now equipped to house 31 residents. Enlarging the Home has made it possible to extend services to Jewish aged in the entire state.

INFIRMARY

The infirmary added in the expansion program provides a high standard of medical care for those who are chronically ill. Nursing and attendant care are available 24 hours a day and a physician is always on call. Facilities and staff are adequate to care for a resident through most forms of illness, chronic and acute.

Residents pay according to their means. In a relatively short time, the Home has changed from a purely charitable function to an institution which serves the entire community, regardless of family income.

Two-thirds of the Home's budget is provided by its residents and one-third is supplemented by the Community Chest, with the Jewish Welfare Federation standing by to meet any deficit in the operating costs. Families outside of Marion county who send individuals to the Home, of course, are responsible for their maintenance.

TO ENCOURAGE TALENT

The Home is administered by a board of directors and a trained professional executive director. Emphasis is placed not only on meeting the physical needs of residents but also in providing them with the opportunity for recreational activities through such means as participation in the Golden Age Club sponsored by the Council of Jewish Women and by encouraging individuals and groups to plan programs of interest to the residents. A projected activity will encourage talents in handicrafts under the direction of a Kirshbaum group worker.

Thanks to the Jewish Welfare Federation, which has made possible adequate facilities, the Joseph and Annie Borinstein Home, with its modern progressive program of services has demonstrated an awareness of one of the really pressing social obligations of our time... the need for better care for our ever-increasing aged population.
